fruit. You men of this college, throughout the south who have had collegiate training bear a peculiar burden of responsibility. I want you to have a good time, and I believe you do. I want you to play with all my heart. Play when you play, but work when you work and remember that your having gone through college does not so much confer a special privilege as it imposes a special obligation on you.

"We have a right to expect a special quality of leadership from the men to whom much has been given in the way of a collegiate education. You are not entitled to any special privilege but you are entitled to be held to a peculiar accountability; you have earned the right to be held responsible for what you do. Each one of you, if he is worth his salt, wishes when he graduates to pay some portion of the debt due to his alma mater. You have received from her during your years of attendance in her halls certain privileges in the way of scholarship, in the way of companionship, which makes it incumbent upon you to repay what you have been given. You cannot repay that to the college save in one way. By the quality of your citizenship as displayed in the actual affairs of life you can make it an honor to the college to have sent you forth into the world. This is the only way in which you can repay to the college what the college has done for you.

Duties of College Men.

"I earnestly hope and believe that you and those like you in all the colleges of this land will make it evident to the generation that is rising that you are fit to take leadership, that the training has not been wasted, that you are ready to render to the state the kind of service which is invaluable because it cannot be bought, because there is no price that can be put upon it. We have the right to expect from collegemen not merely disinterested service but intelligent service.

"The few peoples who exercise self-government always have to war not merely against the knavish man who deliberately does what he knows to be wrong, but against the foolish man who may mean very well, but who in actual fact injures out the life of the other man who does not mean well, and we must depend upon you men who have been given special facilities in education to guide our people aright so that they shall not fall into the pit of folly nor into the pit of knavery."

Visit to "Banner" County.

A bit of sentiment was responsible for a short stop at Lexington, where the president was greeted by several hundred people, to whom he spoke briefly. Lexington is the county seat of Davidson county, the only county in North Carolina [illegible] Roosevelt a majority at the last national election.

Owing to this fact the president was requested to stop for a few moments to extend greetings to the people and receive greetings from the 600 or more orphan children cared for in an asylum there. The children made a pretty sight waving tiny flags as the train came to a stop. Tomorrow morning the president will pay a visit to Roswell, Ga., the home of his mother. From there he will go to Atlanta, where most of the day will be spent. Mrs. Roosevelt will leave him when the capital of Georgia is reached, and return to Washington.

MOUNT ZION, N. C., Oct. 19.—President Roosevelt's special train passed through here at 10:29 o'clock tonight, exactly on time. The train was late in leaving Charlotte on account of the president's speaking longer there than he had planned and when it pulled through Lowell, a small station near Charlotte, it was eight minutes behind time. All of this was made up easily in the 56-mile run from Lowell to Mount Zion.

Although delays incident to the handling of the train will occur, there are no stops scheduled until Roswell, Ga., is reached at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

MINERS SUSTAIN SEVERE INJURIES

Special to The Gazette.

VICTOR, Oct. 19.—[illegible] in a stope above the 800-foot [illegible] Strong mine at 3 o'clock this afternoon dropped William Goble of this city and J. A. Appleby of Colorado Springs 20 feet. Goble sustained a fracture of the pelvis and a rib, with injury to his head and thigh. His condition is critical. Appleby's left shoulder was broken and his scalp, thighs and chest were injured. He is likely to recover. As Goble fell he was probably caused by falling timbers as by impact with the floor. Both men are in local hospitals.

VICTOR, Oct. 19.—Charles Fabrich fell out of a stope in the Portland mine at an early hour this morning and sustained a fracture of the skull. He was operated on tonight by three surgeons. It is believed there is a chance for his recovery.

TRUST COMPANY THINKS PERRY WAS MISQUOTED

F. M. McMahon, assistant secretary of the Colorado Title and Trust company, which has a contract to audit the books of the city officials, was regarding Auditor Perry's statement, as it appeared in the Telegraph.

"Mr. Perry is quoted as saying, with reference to the fuel, light and [illegible] accounts, that these particular accounts were opened at the Trust company's suggestion. The reporter who interviewed Mr. Perry must have misunderstood him, because this is a mistake in [illegible] against those subheads of the [illegible] accounts are proper [illegible] such classifications, but a credit [illegible] unless [illegible] ordinance itself."

MAYOR'S CLAIMS STILL HOLD GOOD

If Deficit Exists In Police Department's Appropriation, City Auditor and Bondsmen Are Liable for Warrants Drawn Against That Fund.

Despite the assertions of the evening paper, Mayor Hall's statement that there is no deficit in the funds of the police department still stands and City Auditor Perry's contentions are futile. If there were any deficit Mr. Perry would refuse to draw any further warrants against the fund, for he knows perfectly well that if he were to continue drawing warrants he and his bondsmen would be held liable.

While admitting that there is still $9,727.56 to the credit of the police appropriation, City Auditor Perry continues to assert that a deficit of $3,000 exists in the fund. Auditor Perry is quoted as saying: "There is a total of $9,727.56 in that fund at the present time, and people may say that because there is money on hand there is no deficit, but I hold that when there is not enough money on hand to pay the bills there is a deficit."

Careful inquiry at the city hall has failed to bring to light any bills, properly chargeable against the police department, that have not been paid. In addition to the amount which Auditor Perry admits is at the disposal of the department, there will be added by the city council tonight the sum of $216 for a fence and shed which Auditor Perry wrongfully charged to the police fund, and the sum of $462.50 which is due to the police fund from the street department for broken rock used by it in road-making and sold to it by the police department. This will give the police fund $10,406.46 to carry it to the end of the year.

But while Auditor Perry is charging that the money on hand is not sufficient to carry the police department to the end of the fiscal year, Mayor Hall is just as positive that the police have sufficient to carry them through. So it appears to be the auditor's opinion against that of the mayor. Mayor Hall last evening said:

"The council appropriated $30,660 for the use of the police department this year. We have not overdrawn this amount. Auditor Perry to the contrary notwithstanding, and I have no intention of allowing that appropriation to be exceeded. It is my purpose to do the same as has been done in former years. The records show that it has been the custom to increase the police force during the summer tourist season and decrease it during the winter. Our citizens have no need of alarm, for while we will reduce the force during the winter, it will not be cut below the safety point."

Another city official said: "If there is a deficit, as charged by Auditor Perry, then it is his duty to decline to issue further warrants against the police fund. The fact that he is still drawing city warrants against that fund is the best argument against his own misleading statements."

Alderman Tucker, chairman of the finance committee, last evening said: "I fail to see any cause for alarm. The finance committee has just been going over the figures with a view to fixing the levy, and find the city in a very healthy financial condition. We find that at this date there still remains unexpended from the total general appropriation the sum of $106,173.71, while upon this day a year ago the council had an unexpended balance of $96,703.77, clearly showing this administration to be $9,469.94 ahead of that a year ago. I also find this administration to be ahead in the matter of general revenue and collections, the receipts from March 1 to Oct. 18, 1904, being $100,545.27, while for the same period this year we have collected $106,753.77. This revenue does not include receipts from the county treasurer."

Though the trip to the isthmus was a hard one, especially for those members accustomed to a cold climate, they are all highly enthusiastic over the management of their journey. The heat was at times excessive, and in the room where the meetings were held the thermometer often registered 90 degrees. The heavy rains which fell almost daily did not bring any relief, but no member was sick even for a single day. Although cases of yellow fever still occur, the efforts of Dr. William Crawford Gorgas, United States army, have achieved great results, and the yellow fever mosquitoes have been almost entirely destroyed.

New and Old Conditions.

Several of the members of the committee commented upon the difference between the canal zone, where American methods are employed, and the Isthmian regions, where the old conditions still prevail. Next to Colon, which is one of the most unhealthy and dirty of cities, they found Cristobal, under the American management, which has become a healthy city. It is laid out in a pleasing manner. The town of Panama has been greatly improved. A water supply has been furnished and the streets will be paved soon. The reception President Amador of Panama gave to the commission was most agreeable. It took place in the afternoon, the weather was so bad and rain fell in such streams that the reception had to take place by artificial light.

Mr. Stevens, the chief engineer of the canal, appeared one day before the commission and was questioned on different subjects. It was the opinion of several members that the trip had enabled them to see the real conditions of the undertaking and had helped them to form a more correct opinion of the difficulties to be dealt with than any information yet furnished. No member has the slightest doubt of the final construction of the canal, but an enterprise of this sort in something which will take a good deal of time.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. Secretary Taft today devoted considerable attention to Panama canal matters. He spent a long time with General Davis, chairman of the board of consulting engineers, early in the day, and in the evening had a conference with Chairman Shonts.

PRESIDENT M'CURDY SAYS HE DOES NOT INTEND TO RESIGN

His Evidence Shows That Trust Company Proteges of the Mutual Become Suddenly and Wonderfully Prosperous---Mind a Blank on Subject of Campaign Contributions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Richard A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company made the statement today that he had no intention of resigning, that he was elected to serve until June 7 next and that nothing can or will drive him out.

It was also announced from the district attorney's office that no action will be taken regarding George J. Plunkitt, the matter now being investigated.

Closing one of the most sensational weeks of the investigation, the committee just before adjournment today concluded the examination of Richard A. McCurdy, with the exception of a few details which he is to supply next week.

Mr. McCurdy has been on the stand the greater part of the three days of this week's session and some of his testimony has been the most startling of any that has been adduced before the committee. His testimony today, however, had very little of a sensational nature though it was of much value to the committee in its work.

Liability of Directors.

When he resumed the stand this morning it was to take up his testimony as to the Mutual Life's connection with trust companies that was interrupted by adjournment yesterday. The information furnished by McCurdy disclosed that the trust companies with which the Mutual Life was connected became very prosperous soon after they were taken up by the Mutual Life.

Counsel in pointing to the fact that the trust company at Englewood, N. J., where the McCurdy family live, and the United States Mortgage and Trust company, [illegible] by the Mutual Life, and Mr. McCurdy testified that he was a director of this trust company. He was a stockholder and would take more stock if he could get it.

The Mutual Life keeps a balance of not less than $20,000 with this company, on which it draws from two to three per cent. The latter rate has been paid only since December. McCurdy did not know the holdings of other members of his family in this company.

In the syndicate operations witness said that he participated not with the idea of drawing bonds but to obtain his share of commissions allowed by bankers.

McCurdy Carries Insurance.

Mr. McCurdy was asked what life insurance he carried and he was unable to say at once, but James M. Beck, his counsel, presented a statement showing when the policies were taken out, for what amounts and the plan. These aggregated $200,000, all in the Mutual. Mr. McCurdy testified that he was also insured in the Equitable, the Washington and the Connecticut Mutual.

Mr. McCurdy was prompted as to dates by James Timpson, assistant treasurer of the Mutual Life Insurance company, whose answers were taken with those of Mr. McCurdy. Mr. McCurdy next testified to a sale of a large number of shares of trust company stock by the Mutual Life Insurance company on December 31, 1901, and a purchase of new stock of the trust company, availing itself of a portion of an increase in stock on January 2, 1902. By this, he said, the Mutual Life Insurance company made a profit of $450,000.

Mr. McCurdy said he presumed he was paid three per cent on his individual deposit with the trust company. He could not explain why the Mutual deposit was increased to $400,000 in January, 1902, and Mr. Beck, counsel for the Mutual answered for him that loans had not been made to the trust company.

Southern Pacific Deal.

Mr. McCurdy said that in the case of the Southern Pacific syndicate the Mutual Life bought $4,000,000 worth of bonds in the public market.

"Now you have said none of your profits were ever contributed by the Mutual. In this case the Mutual contributed to your profits?"

McCurdy replied that it was not true. "I could no more make profits from the Mutual than the Mutual could from me. We were on equal terms as members of the syndicate," said he.

Mr. McCurdy said that he had never [illegible] that any officer of the Mutual Life had any interest in the Corporation Liquidation company, through which the Mutual disposed of its real estate holdings in Brooklyn. He said that the purchase of the bank of California by the Mutual Life was investigated by the financial committee of the Mutual and he did not believe any of the Mutual trustees were much interested in the bank.

Mr. Hughes asked McCurdy if, when the policy holder loses his policy he was not required to give a bond issued by a specified surety company. Mr. McCurdy said he had never heard of it. The Mutual did not have any interest in any surety company, but he and his son are interested in the Casualty company of America.

Mind Conveniently Blank.

"Has the Mutual Life, to your knowledge contributed to the campaign fund of any candidate for judicial office in the city of New York?" asked Mr. Hughes.

"No, I cannot conceive such a thing to be possible," replied Mr. McCurdy. He added that it is very likely that he had been solicited by agents of a political party for campaign contributions but he could not remember by whom.

"Were you solicited for a campaign contribution in 1896 and by what party?"

"My mind is a blank as to that. The talk about campaign contributions is very vague, and I might say, in the air. I cannot remember if I contributed, but I may have been solicited."

Witness was then excused.

When Richard McCurdy had been excused, his son, Robert H. McCurdy, was called to testify as to the insurance on his life. In a blotter was found a number of charges to traveling expenses incurred by Mr. McCurdy as general manager. One of $1,500 Mr. McCurdy said was for a trip of 80 days to the south and west and while the president of the company, the wife and the mother of the witness accompanied him, the amount did not include their expenses. The trip was for the purpose of visiting the agencies. His father went along for his health while suffering from gout. Two other trips were taken by Mr. McCurdy and were charged up at $1,367. His wife and her maid accompanied him on one of these which was along the Pacific and into the west.

William Richards, comptroller of the Mutual Life, followed Robert H. McCurdy. Mr. Richards is in charge of the mortgages and loans and has 92 parcels of property under his charge. He testified that the Grosvenor building was carried on the books of the company at $300,000. Of the sale of the Mutual's Brooklyn property he said the Corporation Liquidation company took it over. This property was sold at a loss, witness said, as it cost the Mutual Life $1,000,000 and was sold for $600,000. He said during the last 15 years the Mutual had charged about $1,000,000 to profit and loss in the real estate de[illegible]

Mr. Kindel conducted his own defense and was acquitted on the first count of [illegible] three remaining counts tomorrow.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 19.—John J. Kelly, clerk of the city market houses, was arrested today on a warrant sworn out by the director of public works. CITY AUDITOR HAS UNIQUE METHODS OF BOOKKEEPING

In an interview in the Telegraph yesterday, Auditor Perry comments humorously on "the way some newspaper men figure." Inasmuch as the city auditor's office is intimately concerned with "ways of figuring," it may interest the public to know some of the methods of that art practiced by Mr. Perry in his official capacity. The Gazette today publishes an interview with Mr. F. M. McMahon, assistant secretary of the Colorado Title and Trust company, who is thoroughly familiar with Mr. Perry's methods because his firm has examined the auditor's books in common with those of the other city officials. In this interview Mr. McMahon, in behalf of the Trust company, disclaims responsibility for the "particular accounts" which Mr. Perry tells the public "were opened on their suggestion."

Further evidence of what the Trust company thinks of Auditor Perry's methods of conducting his office is found in certain reports made by them to the mayor and city council and which are now city records, on file at the clerk's office. One of these documents is dated May 17, 1905, and is a report on the books and records of the city auditor by the Trust company for audit of books from September 1 to November 30, 1904. The concluding paragraph is as follows:

"In conclusion we beg to point out the necessity of having the auditor's records, which are practically of the order of a set of general books, contain all accounts necessary to show every resource, liability, earning and expense of every one of the various city offices. Each individual office should have, as recommended in our previous reports, a set of books, in which should appear [illegible] of the main implements and other miscellaneous items which belong to such department, together with a complete statement of the various items of receipts and disbursements entered therein each month, and the monthly reports from these several departments should be verified by the auditor and then made a portion of his records. At the present time the auditor's records are by no means adequate and we recommend that a proper system be installed as soon as practicable. In connection with the records of this most important office of all we shall be glad to discuss verbally the proposed system in detail at any time which will suit the convenience of your honorable committee.

"Very truly yours,
"THE COLORADO TITLE AND TRUST COMPANY,
"By F. M. M'MAHON,
"Assistant Secretary."

Worse and More of It.

A similar report dated June 28, 1905, for audit of Mr. Perry's books and records from December 1, 1904, to June 1, 1905, contains the following statements:

"We would again, however, call your attention to our previous [illegible] tions, viz: that the [illegible] as a whole are not what we [illegible] modern system of municipal [illegible] ing."

"A great reduction in the amount of work of the city auditor might be made, even in the present [illegible] of accounting. As an instance: [illegible] unnecessary [illegible] done. There are, of course, [illegible] that it is [illegible] but the bulk of the [illegible] could properly be [illegible]

"We append herewith a bill [illegible] ance as shown by the [illegible] The facts to be [illegible] man as to the condition of [illegible] cern in which he is interested, [illegible] and should always be [illegible] from a correct system of books [illegible] and the same results may be [illegible] tained concerning the condition of a municipality."

These comments on Mr. Perry's method of discharging his official duties, made by the company which is employed by contract to audit all of the city's accounts, show conclusively that during the nine months from September 1, 1904, to June 1, 1905, the affairs of the city auditor were being conducted in anything but a satisfactory manner. All of which is entertaining in view of Mr. Perry's efforts to divert attention from the real issue by enlarging on "the way some newspaper men figure."

FALSE ALARM OVER HIDDEN NECKLACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—A girl employe's caution in hiding a piece of diamond jewelry over night resulted in an alarm today that a necklace worth several thousand dollars had been stolen. Until the girl herself arrived to reveal the missing jewel's hiding, William Schiers' manufacturing jewelry establishment at 45 Fifth avenue was closed to everyone except detectives and employes, the latter being prohibited to leave the place. The girl, who works as a polisher, appeared at work late and said that not having finished burnishing the jewelry before the safe was closed last night she had hidden it.

Baffled detectives and the force of employes were then led by the girl to the place where she worked last night. There the jewel was still concealed.

RAILROAD LEGISLATION THE THEME TAKEN BY ROOSEVELT

Address at Raleigh, N. C., a Clear Enunciation of the Administration on This Important Subject---Urges Remedy of Present Abuses by Action of Congress.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 19.—President Roosevelt arrived here on time this morning and was given an enthusiastic greeting. His address to the people of Raleigh was as follows:

The Address.

I am glad here at the capital of North Carolina to have a chance to greet so many of the sons and daughters of your great state. North Carolina's part in our history has ever been high and honorable. It was in North Carolina that the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence foreshadowed the course taken in a few short months by the representatives of the thirteen colonies assembled in Philadelphia. North Carolina can rightfully say that she pointed the way which led to the formation of the new nation. In the revolution she did many memorable deeds; and the battle of King's mountain marked the turning point of the Revolutionary war in the south. But I congratulate you not only upon your past, but upon your present. I congratulate you upon the great industrial activity shown in your commonwealth, an industrial activity which, to mention but one thing, has placed this state second only to one other in the number of its textile factories. You are showing in practical fashion your realization of the truth that there must be a foundation of material well-being in order that any community may make real and rapid progress. And I am happy to say that you are in addition showing in practical fashion your understanding of the great truth that this material well-being, though necessary as a foundation, can only be the foundation, and that upon it must be raised the superstructure of a higher life, if the commonwealth is to stand as it should stand. More and more you are giving care and attention to education, and education means the promotion not only of industry, but of that good citizenship which rests upon individual rights and upon the recognition by each individual that he has duties as well as rights—in other words—of that good citizenship which rests upon moral integrity and intellectual freedom. "The man must be decent in his home life, his private life, of course; but this is not by itself enough. The man who fails to be honest and brave both in his political franchise and in his private business contributes to political and social rottenness. Self-government is not an easy thing. Only those communities are fit for it in which the average individual practices the virtue of self-command, of self-restraint, of wise disinterestedness combined with wise self-interest; where the individual possesses common sense, honesty and courage."

Preserve the Forests.

And I now want to say a word to you on a special subject in which all the country is concerned, but in which North Carolina has a special concern. The preservation of the forests is vital to the welfare of every country. China and the Mediterranean countries offer examples of the terrible effect of deforestization upon the physical geography, and therefore ultimately upon the national well-being of the military. One of the most obvious duties which our generation owes to the generations that are to come after us is to preserve the existing forests. The prime difference between civilized and uncivilized peoples is that in civilized peoples each generation works not only for its own well-being, but for the well-being of the generations yet unborn, and if we permit the natural resources of this land to be destroyed so that we hand over to our children a heritage diminished in value we thereby prove our unfitness to stand in the forefront of civilized peoples. One of the greatest of those heritages is our forest wealth. It is the upper altitudes of the forested mountains that are most valuable to the nation as a whole, especially because of their effects upon the water supply. Neither state nor nation can afford to turn these mountains over to the unrestrained greed of those who would exploit them at the expense of the future. We can not afford to wait longer before assuming control, in the interest of the public, of these forests; for if we do wait the vested interests of private parties in them may become so strongly intrenched that it may be a most serious as well as a most expensive task to oust them. If the eastern state are wise, then from the Bay of Fundy to the Gulf we will see, within the next few years, a policy set on foot similar to that so fortunately carried out in the high Sierras of the west by the national government. All the higher Appalachians should be reserved, either by the states or by the nation. I much prefer that they should be put under national control, but it is a mere truism to say that they will not be reserved either by the states or by the nation unless you people of the south show a strong interest therein.

Forest Reserves.

Such reserves would be a paying investment, not only in protection to many interests, but in dollars and cents to the government. The importance to the southern people of protecting the southern mountain forests is obvious. These forests are the best defense against the floods which, in the recent past, have during a single twelvemonth, destroyed property officially valued at nearly twice what it would cost to buy the southern Appalachian reserve. The maintenance of your southern water powers is not less important than the prevention of floods, because if they are injured your manufacturing interests will suffer with them. The perpetuation of your forests, which have done so much for the south, should be one of the first objects of your public men. The two senators from North Carolina have taken an honorable part in this movement. But I do not think that the people of North Carolina, or of any other southern state, have quite grasped the importance of this movement to the commercial development and prosperity of the south.

Hope for Future.

The position of honor in your parade today is held by the confederate veterans. They by their deeds reflect credit upon their descendants and upon all Americans both because they did their duty in war and because they did their duty in peace. Now if the young men, their sons, will not only prove that they possess the same power of fealty to an ideal, but will also show the efficiency in the ranks of industrial life that their fathers, the confederate veterans, showed that they possessed in the ranks of war, the industrial future of this great and typically American commonwealth is assured.

The extraordinary development of industrialism during the last half century has been due to several causes, but above all to the revolution in the methods of transportation and communication; that is, to steam and to electricity, to the railroad and the telegraph.

When this government was founded, commerce was carried on by essentially the same instruments that had been in use not only among civilized, but among barbarian nations, ever since history dawned; that is by wheeled vehicles drawn by animals, by pack trains and by sailing ships and rowboats. On land this meant that commerce went in slow, cumbrous, and expensive fashion over high portation, if such was feasible between ways could not compete with water transportation, if such was feasible between the connecting points.

The Railroads.

All this has been changed by the development of the railroads. Save on the ocean or on lakes so large as to be practically inland seas, transport by water has wholly lost its old position of superiority over transport by land, while instead of the old highways open to everyone on the same terms, but of a very limited usefulness, we have new highways—railroads—which are owned by private corporations, and which are practically of unlimited, instead of limited, usefulness. The big laws and old customs which were adequate and proper to meet the old conditions need radical readjustment in order to meet these new conditions. The cardinal features in these changed conditions are, first, the fact that the new highway, the railway, is from the commercial standpoint, of infinitely greater importance in our industrial life than was the old highway, the wagon road; and second, that this new highway, the railway, is in the hands of private owners, whereas the old highway, the wagon road, was in the hands of the state. The management of the new highway, the railroad, or rather of the intricate web of railroad lines which cover the country, is a task infinitely more difficult, more delicate, and more important than the primitively easy task of acquiring or keeping in order the old highway, so that there is properly no analogy whatever between the two cases. I do not believe in government ownership of anything which can with propriety be left in private hands, and in particular I should most strenuously object to government ownership of railroads. But I believe with equal firmness that it is out of the question for the government not to exercise a supervisory and regulatory right over the railroads; for it is vital to the well-being of the public that they should be managed in a spirit of fairness and justice toward all the public. Actual experience has shown that it is not possible to leave the railroad uncontrolled. Such a system, or rather such a lack of system, is fertile in abuses of every kind, and puts a premium upon unscrupulous and ruthless cunning in railroad management; for there are some big shippers and some railroad managers who are always willing to take unfair advantage of their weaker competitors, and they thereby force other big shippers and big railroad men who would like to do decently into similar acts of wrong and injustice, under penalty of being left behind in the race for success. Government supervision is needed quite as much in the interest of the big shipper and of the railroad men who want to do right as in the interest of the small shipper and the consumer.

Laws Need Change.

Experience has shown that the present laws are defective and need amendment. The effort to prohibit all restraint of competition, whether reasonable or unreasonable, is unwise. What we need is to have some administrative body with ample power to forbid combination that is hurtful to the public, and to prevent favoritism to one individual at the expense of another. In other words, we want an administrative body with the power to secure fair and just treatment as among all shippers who use the railroads and all shippers have a right to use them. We must not leave the enforcement of such a law merely to the department of justice; it is out of the question for the law department of the government to do what should be purely administrative work. The department of justice is to stand behind and cooperate with the administrative body, but the administrative body itself must be given the power to do the work and then held to a strict accountability for the exercise of that power. The delays of the law are proverbial, and what we need in this matter is reasonable quickness of action.

Many Abuses.

The abuses of which we have a general [illegible] are many. Rebates are not now often given openly. But they can be given just as effectively in covert form, and private cars, terminal tracks and the like must be brought under the control of the commission or administrative body, which is to exercise supervision by the government. But in my judgment the most important thing to do is to give this administrative body power to make its findings effective, and this can be done only by giving it power, when complaint is made of a given rate as being unjust or unreasonable, if it finds the complaint proper then itself to fix a maximum rate which it regards as fair and reasonable, this rate to go into effect practically at once, that is within a reasonable time, and to stay in effect unless reversed by the courts. I earnestly hope that we shall see a law giving this power passed by congress. Moreover, I hope that by law power will be conferred upon representatives of the government capable of performing the duty of public accountants carefully to examine into the books of railroads, when so ordered by the interstate commerce commission, which should itself have power to prescribe what books, and what books only, should be kept by railroads. If there is in the minds of the commission any suspicion that a certain railroad is in any shape or way giving rebates or behaving improperly, I wish the commission to have power as a matter of right, not as a matter of favor, to make a full and exhaustive investigation of the receipts and expenditures of the railroad, so that any violation or evasion of the law may be detected. This is not a revolutionary proposal so far as I am, for I wish the same power given in regard to railroads that is now exercised as a matter of course by the national bank examiners as regards national banks. My object in giving these additional powers to the administrative body representing the government—the interstate commerce commission, or whatever it may be—is primarily to secure a real and not a sham control to the government representatives. The American people abhor a sham, and with this abhorrence I cordially sympathize. Nothing is more injurious from every standpoint than a law which is merely noise and fury, merely pretense, and not capable of working out tangible results. I hope to see all the power that I think it ought to have granted to the government; but I would far rather see only some of it granted, but really granted, than see a pretense of granting all, in some shape that really amounts to nothing.

Square Deal for All.

It must be understood, as a matter of course, that if this power is granted it is to be exercised with wisdom and caution and self-restraint. The interstate commerce commissioner or other government official who failed to protect a railroad that was in the right against any clamor, no matter how violent, on the part of the public, would be guilty of as gross a wrong as if he corruptly rendered an improper service to the railroad at the expense of the public. When I say a square deal I mean a square deal; exactly as much a square deal for the rich man as for the poor man; but no more. Let each stand on his merits, receive what is due him, and be judged according to his deserts. To more he is not entitled, and less he should not have.

CURES CATARRH AND ASTHMA.

Foreign Specialists Give Reason for Marvelous Success of New Remedy Asatco.

VIENNA, Oct. 19.—The astonishing success of the asatco treatment for catarrh, asthma and bronchitis is wholly attributed to its marvelous action on the mucous membranes and having no disturbing influence on other organs of the body.

It is claimed by European savants, from whom this remedy emanated, that 500 drops will permanently cure even the most obstinate case. The dose is small and pleasant to take, being but seven drops twice daily. The Austrian dispensary, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City, will send a trial treatment of asatco free, by mail, to all sufferers who have not tested the wonderful curative powers of this specific.

FREE ICING IS NOT A REALITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Several traffic managers of northwestern railroads testified before the Interstate commerce commission today in the private car inquiry concerning the manner of handling fruit and perishable products in their territory. Most of them said they have entered into arrangements with private car lines by which the latter engaged to take the responsibility for the handling of the fruit, the railroads acting as agents only in the matter of transportation. A. Allis, an ice manufacturer of Augusta, Ga., submitted a contract his company has to supply the Armour car lines with ice, and gave many details concerning the arrangement with the private car line. It is expected the hearing will be concluded tomorrow.

W. C. Rowley, freight traffic manager of the Michigan Central railroad, admitted that in cases where free icing of dairy or other products is advertised the freight tariff takes into the account the cost of such icing. J. H. Kerr, general manager of the American Refrigerator Transit company, testified that he believed the stock of the company is owned by the Wabash, Missouri Pacific and the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railroads. The contract with the Iron Mountain was offered in evidence. This contract showed that the American Refrigerator company receives one cent a mile for each car, traveling both ways, and 12½ per cent commission on all freight charges on perishable goods carried in these cars. Mileage and commissions brought the receipts of the company up to $5 a car. The company, he said, had not lost money but had paid no dividends.

OMAHA, Oct. 19.—The laying out of townsites along the new extension of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad from Casper to the Wind river reservation in Wyoming has received a good start.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Oct. 19.—In the district court tonight Henry Bunte, who was held up and robbed of $300 on Bennet avenue, at 1:30 a. m., October 1, testified that he believed he recognized Bert Smith by his voice. Smith and Charles Eightmeyer are on trial for the crime before Judge Seeds.

William Young, night marshal, said Bunte told him he could identify neither of his assailants except by voice. Young arrested Smith near Third and Bennett avenue an hour after the robbery. The case will probably reach the jury by noon tomorrow. Able attorneys are engaged on both sides, and they are contesting every point in the case. The defendants are well known men about town.

USED GUN TO GET A TALK WITH SULLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—A tall, well-dressed, middle-aged man walked into the private office of Winfield Sully, on Broadway, yesterday, drew a revolver and, pointing the weapon at the head of Mr. Sully, said:

"I am going to collect that money."

Mr. Sully turned quickly.

"We'll talk it over," he said.

The visitor sat down a moment, and detectives, who had been summoned by a clerk, disarmed the visitor, who said he was Edward Brown, 38 years old, a broker of Hempstead, L. I.

"Sully owes me some money, and I thought this was the only way to get it," he said to the detectives.

Brown a few years ago owned a large country place opposite that of August Belmont, at Hempstead. He sold his place and promoted several large deals in South America. While engineering one of these schemes, which he thought would have made a large fortune, he had a slight sunstroke. This affected him seriously for some time, and at times caused him to act strangely. He is a brother of Captain A. W. Brown, U. S. A., now in the Philippines.

He was locked up. Sully said he had no dealings with Brown.

INCREASED NUMBER OF COURTS MARTIAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The annual report of General B. F. Davis, judge advocate general of the commissioned officers, tried during the last year by general court martial, 35 were convicted and 13 acquitted. The total number of trials before general court martial of 4,900 cases shows an increase of 551 cases over last year. This increase is mainly due to the fact that a large number of deserters have been apprehended and brought to trial, the number of convictions for desertion being 1,476 this year, an increase of 413. This gain is chiefly due to the increase of the guard paid to all civil officers for the apprehension of deserters, indicating greater vigilance on their part. The number of men interested to dishonorable discharge was 2,519.

INVESTIGATING BANK FAILURE

PITTSBURG, Oct. 19.—The investigation of the affairs of the Enterprise National bank, Allegheny City, Pa., is making good progress. For the last eight days and the two days of today John R. Cunningham, national bank examiner who was appointed receiver of the institution, pending his investigation, assisted by a large clerical force, labored steadily in an effort to unravel the extent of the bank's financial entanglement. The developments following the tragedy and the closing of the bank have been startling, involving the names of several prominent citizens who have been active in state affairs.

According to President Gwynner, the bank through Cashier Clark has furnished most of the funds used to float the Santa Fe Central railway and the Pennsylvania Development company, in which former state Senators W. H. Andrews and Arthur Kennedy, and Francis J. Torrance were deeply interested, together with Cashier Clark. The two projects are allied ones. Former Senator Arthur Kennedy is president of the development company and former Senator W. H. Andrews is president of the other. Frank J. Torrance is heavily interested in both concerns and his confidential man, W. C. Hagan, is secretary of both companies. T. Lee Clark, the dead cashier of the Enterprise, was treasurer of both companies, and the bank was the custodian of their bonds which were held as security for the loans. Personal notes of the promoters are also reported to be among the additional security furnished the bank.

Former Senator Andrews denies the statement of President Gwynner, and says he never got a cent from the bank. Mr. Torrance is ill and Secretary Hagan, speaking for him, also denied that he had been a borrower. Former Senator Kennedy is en route to this city and is expected some time today. Upon reaching here a meeting of the directors will be called, and it is said a complete statement of the condition of the companies connected with the bank will be made. Since the closing of the bank it has developed that United States government and state officers have been in Pittsburg within the past few weeks to examine the affairs of the institution, and particularly it was intended to make an investigation of the statement recently made by Homer L. Castle, prohibition candidate for supreme judge, relative to the accepting of money from the state with the understanding that certain politicians would have the benefit of loans.

W. B. Rikely, comptroller of the currency, was in Pittsburg two weeks ago, and last week John A. Berkey, state commissioner of banking, and John W. Morrison, deputy commissioner of banking, spent several days in this city. Berkey left Pittsburg last Thursday and Morrison departed Friday. They are said to have had conferences with several Republican politicians. It is said that the state will lose nothing by the closing of the Enterprise National bank as the state funds are fully protected by bondsmen. The funds on deposit in the institution are insured by indemnity bonds furnished the state treasurer by the directors of the bank, the Mercantile Trust company of Pittsburg and the United States Fidelity and Guarantee company of Baltimore.

National Bank Examiner Cunningham when seen today said it was early for him to be able to say anything as to the bank's condition.

SOCIAL ATTENTIONS FOR W. J. BRYAN

TOKIO, Oct. 19.—The American minister, Lloyd C. Griscom, will present William J. Bryan to the emperor on October 21. Huntington Wilson, secretary of the American legation, gave a luncheon today in honor of Mr. Bryan. Viscount Aoki, former minister of foreign affairs, Baron Kentaro Kaneko, member of the house of peers, and M. Sakatani, the vice minister of finance, were present. The last mentioned official is a pronounced advocate of the gold standard.

Mr. Griscom will give a dinner to Mr. Bryan tomorrow. Marquis Ito, president of the privy council, and Count Okuma, the leader of the progressive party, are expected to be present.

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is no less indefatigable as a traveler than as a worker. Since he succeeded to the office of Chief Executive four years ago he has made several extended trips, one of which led him to the Pacific Coast. The tour of the South began Wednesday embraces all of the Atlantic Coast states south of Washington, and also Alabama, Arkansas and Louisiana. When it is completed he will have visited since he became President every state in the Union.

When the time can be spared from his official duties, it is an excellent thing for a President of the United States to thus show himself to the people, and nobody is likely to say that in making this or any other trip Mr. Roosevelt is using time which should properly be spent at his desk in Washington. He probably accomplishes more work than any other President of recent years, and yet he finds more spare time for reading and recreation. He is one of the most democratic men that have occupied the office of president, and a large share of his popularity is due entirely to this characteristic. No way station is too small for him to address the people if his train happens to stop there, and his talks are invariably of the most familiar and informal kind. Even his set speeches, which are delivered usually on special occasions, have a tone of informality in striking contrast with the public utterances of some of his predecessors. Mr. Roosevelt seems always anxious to get close to his audience, and to talk to them in the heart-to-heart fashion that carries conviction. This method must be a revelation to the people of some of the more remote districts, who perhaps have an spdnly exalted idea of the man and the office. They find that the President of the United States is just like other men, and that even though he travels in a special train, with a dozen or more correspondents and official attaches, it is all very simple and unostentatious.

Mr. Roosevelt's free-and-easy manners are not lacking in dignity. He knows how to compel at all times the respect due his office, but he also knows that such public exhibitions of what our Democratic friends are pleased to term "Jeffersonian simplicity" invariably win the hearts of the people. Virginia has already displayed the same enthusiasm for him that has repeatedly been shown in the North, and it is safe to predict that his entire Southern tour will be a continuous ovation, free from any trace of the sectional feeling displayed toward him a few years ago, because of his attitude on the negro problem.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

IT IS gratifying to note that even in matters pertaining to athletics the authorities of Columbia University hold scholarship above all else. The fact that a student is a good athlete does not exempt him from fulfilling the requirements of the class room. The football or baseball player must maintain the standard of the institution or face the disgrace of suspension or expulsion. It is not that the authorities of Columbia do not fully appreciate the importance of physical development, or that they do not realize that it is to the interest of the school to have good athletic teams; it merely shows that they regard mental advancement as the first business of any educational institution.

By the rigid enforcement of the rules in regard to scholarship no less than three of the promising members of the 1905 team, including the captain, have been debarred from further participation in the football matches. The captain of the eleven, who was, perhaps, the best player, has been dropped entirely from the university, while two others have been denied the privilege and honor of playing on the team because they are behind in their studies.

It is not a bad idea once in a while to have public attention attracted to the fact that even valuable members of the football team have to keep up with the other members of their classes in the regular college work. There are many instances where the best athletes in our colleges and universities are the best students, but there are also many examples of the football and baseball player who neglects the educational side of college life for athletics. It is this class that should be weeded out, and Columbia university is setting a good example.

In our own state College stands out prominently for pure athletics. It stands for the same principles as do the authorities of Columbia University. More than once the public has wondered why this or that baseball or football player has not appeared in the Tiger line, only to be left with the impression that physical disability was responsible. The real cause in several instances of the kind in the last few years, however, might have been traced to a meeting of the college faculty prior to the contest at hand. Any college or university taking this stand certainly deserves the highest commendation.

AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN TROUBLES.

AS A SCENE of political troubles Austria-Hungary is second only to the Balkan states. Scarcely a month passes without dispatches announcing new disputes, or detailing the progress of old ones in the polyglot empire. The whole trouble arises from the fact that two distinct nations, inhabited by a dozen or more races, in some cases as totally different in their characteristics [illegible] united under one government. The situation is further complicated by the intense pride and patriotism of the Hungarians, who resent the smallest acts which to their minds indicate a desire by the government to sink their individuality in that of Austria.

The trouble which is just now filling so much space in the press arises from a source which seems trivial, but to the pugnacious Magyars is highly important. Emperor Francis Joseph insists that the Hungarians must receive the military word of command in German, which is the prevailing language of Austria, while the Hungarian military sentiment demands that the word of command to Hungarian soldiers shall be given in the Magyar tongue. The politicians, of course, have been quick to avail themselves of the discontent of the army, as an excuse for attempting to exact from Austria certain concessions in regard to the future relations of the two countries. A short time ago a delegation composed of several of the most influential Hungarian statesmen waited on the emperor of Vienna, but he merely reiterated his position, and to make it more emphatic, spoke only in German.

This incident has some significance, for it served to remind the Hungarians that the Magyar tongue on which they insist so strongly is only one of several spoken in Hungary, and that it is really the language of a minority of the people. The census of 1900 shows that out of a total Hungarian population of 19,254,559, only 8,742,301 are Magyars. Of the remaining races the Germans are the most numerous, there being 2,135,181. After them come the Slovaks, then in order the Roumanians, Ruthenians, Croats and Servians, while there is a scattering population belonging to other races numbering 397,761. The Magyars are more unified than any of these other people, and have thereby been enabled to secure the political advantages whereby they have long governed Hungary. The numerically subordinate races have been discontented under this domination, but have been compelled to yield. It is likely that to a large part of the Hungarian army, the word of command given in the Magyar language would be just as distasteful as it is to the Magyar element when given in German.

In the present emergency, if the Emperor succeeds in maintaining peace, it will have to be by treating with the Magyars. At the best, he cannot hope to do more than patch up a temporary truce, and it is generally agreed that after his death, which is likely to be within a few years, his empire will fall to pieces. Hungary is almost certain to set up an independent government and it is not improbable that one or two of the neighboring powers will attempt to secure a slice of the present Austro-Hungarian empire. Francis Joseph's heirs are said to possess neither his ability nor his popularity, so it is hardly to be expected that they could maintain a stable government. The end of the next generation is likely to see the termination of the ancient Austrian empire.

ANOTHER STORY ABOUT ALICE.

That dare of Alice Roosevelt's and her dash into a tank of water in full dress, proves her a chip off the old block. It is a pity Alice has passed the age where an application of the maternal slipper would be permissible. However, come to think of it, the probabilities are that the whole story is a yellow journal lie.—Telluride Journal.

SILVER IN DEMAND.

It is interesting to know that the demand for silver for money purposes is greater now than it has been for many years, and the fact that the United States will soon be in the market as a buyer will undoubtedly tend to strengthen the price.

ETHICS OF THE OFFERING.

The collection plate is sometimes made a convenience for getting rid of bad pieces which one either cannot or will not dare to spend in trade. It is no more justifiable to pass fraudulent money in charity than in commerce. There is no property right in forgery and one may no more "shove" forged money as a gift than as payment in trade. Knowingly to give a counterfeit nickel to a wayside mendicant or to a missionary is as much a crime as to pay it to a car conductor or over a candy counter—with this difference, however, that the former is the meaner. The ethics of the contribution box ought to be clear to the teacher. Granted that it is funny to contribute a button, the fun is misplaced in an offering to the Lord. All the worse is uncurrent and fraudulent coin. The treasurer has cause to insist that the church is a good place to practice propriety and honesty as well as generosity.—Pilgrim Teacher.

WHEN THE FIRE FIEND CAME TO TOWN.

A great many helped Mr. Engle carry out his goods. Others helped themselves to the goods afterward. He says if the goods are returned he will not have their names published. Otherwise he will, because he knows who took the goods. One lodger in the hotel, who had been imbibing too freely, was, with difficulty, aroused and gotten out of the room. He insisted that he had paid for the bed and was going to sleep in it as long as he pleased. Everybody turned out to the fire. Some were almost dressed. The fire was not gotten under control for an hour and a half after it started, but the firemen did splendid work just the same in confining the fire to a few buildings. It was what might be termed a lucky fire. Had it occurred during the big dust storm there would have been a different story to relate. The chief of the fire department slept peacefully during the blaze, but the assistant chief did the best he could under the circumstances. Mr. Engle and his dog were the last to leave the burning building. The roof fell in just as Mr. Engle stepped outside. So narrow was their escape that the hair on the tail of the dog of Mr. Engle was scorched.—Dayton (Wash.) Chronicle.

THE LONG NIGHT

A Story of Love, War and Witchcraft in Old Geneva

By STANLEY J. WEYMAN

Author of "A Gentleman of France," "Under the Red Robe," "The House of the Wolf."

Copyright, 1903, by Stanley J. Weyman. Published by special arrangement with McClure, Phillips & Co., New York.

THE clock of St. Gervais was striking eleven as still in exalted mood, he turned his back on the view and entered the house in the Corraterie. He had entered on his return from his fruitless visit to Blondel, and had satisfied himself that Anne was safe. Doubtless she was still safe, for the house was quiet.

In his new mood he was almost inclined to quarrel with this. In the ardor of his passion he would fain have seen the danger immediate, the peril present, that he might prove to her how much he loved her, how deeply he felt for her. What he would dare for her. To die on the hearth of the living room at her feet and saving her, seemed for a moment the thing most desirable—the purest happiness.

That was denied him. The house was quiet, as in a morning it commonly was. So quiet that he recalled without effort the dreams which he had dreamed on that spot and the thoughts which had filled is heart to bursting a few hours before. The great pot was there, simmering on its hook; and on the small table beside it, the table that Hasteign and Grio occupied, stood a platter with a few dried herbs and a knife fresh from her hand. Claude made sure that he was unobserved, and, raising the knife to his lips, kissed the haft gently and reverently, think what she had suffered many a day while using it. What fear, and grief and humiliation, and—

He stood erect, his face red; he listened intently. Upstairs, breaking the long silence of the house, opening as it were a window to admit the soul, a voice had uplifted itself in song. The voice had some of the tones of Anne's voice, and something that reminded him of her voice. But when had he heard her sing? When had aught so clear, so mirthful, or so young, fallen from her as this—this melody, laden with life and youth and abundance, that rose and fell, and floated to his ears through the half-open door of the staircase?

He crept to the staircase door, and listened; yes, it was her voice, but not such as he had ever heard it. It was her voice as he could fancy it in another life, a life in which she was as other girls, darkened by no fear, pinched by no anxiety, crushed by no contumely; such as her voice might have been uplifted in the garden of his old home on the French border, amid bees and flowers and fresh-scented herbs. Her voice, doubtless, it was; but it sorted so ill with the thoughts he had been thinking, that with his astonishment was mingled something of shock and of loss. He had dreamed of dying for her or with her, and she sang! He was prepared for peril, and her voice vied with the lark's in joyous trills.

Leaning forward to hear more clearly, he touched the door. It was open but an inch or two; before he could hinder it, it closed with a sharp sound. The singing ceased, with an abruptness that told, or he was much mistaken, of self-remembrance. And presently, after an interval of no more than a few seconds, during which he pictured the singer listening, he heard her begin to descend.

Two men may do the same thing from motives as far apart as the poles. Claude did what Louis would have done. As the foot drew near the staircase door, treading, less willingly, less lightly, more like that of Anne with every step, he slid into his closet and stood. Through the crack between the hinges of the open door he would be able to view her face when she appeared.

A second later she came and he saw. The light of the song was still in her eyes, but mingled, as she looked around the room to learn who was there, with something of exaltation and defiance. Christian maidens might have worn some such aspect, he thought—but he was in love—as they passed to the lions. Or Esther, when she went unbidden into the inner court of the king's house, and before the golden sceptre moved. Something had happened to her. But what?

She did not see him, and after standing a moment to assure herself that she was alone, she passed to the hearth. She lifted the lid of the pot, bent over it, and slowly stirred the broth; then, having covered it again, she began to chop the dried herbs on the platter. Even in her manner of doing this he fancied a change; a something unlike the Anne he had known, the Anne he had come to love. The face was more animated, the action quicker, the step lighter, the carriage more free. She began to sing and stopped; fell into a reverie, with the knife in her hand, and the herb half cut; again roused herself to finish her task; finally having slid the herbs from the platter to the pot, she stood in a second reverie, with the eyes fixed on the window.

He began to feel the falsity of his position. It was the late to show himself, and if she discovered him what would she think of him? Would she believe that in spying upon her, he had some evil purpose, some low motive, such as Louis might have had? His cheek grew hot. And then in a trice he forgot himself.

Her eyes had left the window, and failed to the window-seat. It was the thing she did then which drew him out of himself. Moving to the window—he had to stoop forward to keep her within the range of his sight—she took from it a glove, held it a moment, regarding it; then, with a tender yet whimsical laugh, a laugh half happiness, half ridicule of herself, she kissed it.

It was Claude's glove. And if, with that before his eyes he could have restrained himself, the alternative was not his. She turned in the act, and saw him; and with a startled cry she put—none too soon—the table between them.

They faced one another across it, he flushed, eager, with love in his eyes, and on his lips; she blushing but not ashamed, her new found joy in her eyes, and in the poise of her head.

"Anne!" he cried. "I know now! I know! I have seen and you cannot deceive me!"

"In what?" she said, a smile trembling on her lips. "And of what, Messer Claude, are you so certain, if you please?"

"That you love me!" he replied. "But not a hundredth part—" he stretched his arms across the table toward her—"as much as I love you, and have loved you for weeks. As I loved you even before I learned last night."

"What?" Into her face that had not found one hard look to rebuke his boldness came something of her old silent, watchful self. "What did you learn last night?"

"Your secret!"

"I have none!" Quick as thought the words came from her lips. "I have none!" "God is merciful"—with a gesture of her open arms, as if she put something from her, "and it is gone! If you know, if you guess aught of what it was," her eyes questioned his and read in them if not that which he knew, that which he thought of her—"I ask you to be silent."

"I will, after I have—"

"Now! Always!"

"Not till I have spoken once!" he cried. "Not till I have told you once what I think of you! Last night—I heard. And I understood. I saw what you had gone through, what you had feared, what had been your life all these weeks, rising and lying down! I saw what you meant when you bade me so anywhere but here, and why you suffered what you did at their hands, and why they dared to treat you so! And had they been here I would have killed them!" he added, his eyes sparkling. "And had you been here—"

"Yes?" She did not seek to check him now. Her bearing was changed, her eyes, soft and tender, met his as no eyes had ever met them.

"I should have worshiped you! I should have knelt as I kneel now!" he cried. And sinking on his knees he extended his arms across the table and took her unresisting hands. "If you no longer have a secret, you had one, and I bless God for it! For without it I might not have known you, Anne! I might not have—"

"Perhaps you do not know me now," she said; but she did not withdraw her hands or her eyes. Only into the latter grew a shade of trouble. "I have done—I am a thief."

"Pah!"

"It is true. I am a thief."

"What is it to me?" He laughed a laugh as tender as her eyes. "You are a thief, for you have stolen my heart. For the rest, do you think that I do not know you now? That I can be twice deceived? I know you!"

"But you do not know," she said tremulously, "what I have done, what I did last night, or what may happen."

"I know that it will happen, not to one but to two," he replied bravely. "And that is all I ask to know. That, and that you are content it shall be so?"

"Content?"

"Yes."

"Content!"

There are things, other than wine, that bring truth to the surface. That which had happened to the girl in the last few hours, that which had melted her into unwonted song, was of these things; and the tone of her voice as she repeated the word "Content!" the surrender of her eyes that placed her heart in his keeping, as frankly as she left her hands in his, proclaimed it. The reserves of her sex, the tricks of coyness and reticence men look for in maids, were shaken from her; and as man to man her eyes told him the truth, told him that if she had ever doubted she no longer doubted that she loved him. In the heart which a single passion, the purest of which men and women are capable, had engrossed, Nature, who, expel her as you will, will still return, had won her fight and barred her kingdom.

Royal Baking Powder

Avoid Alum Baking Powders

"I am very strongly of the opinion that the use of alum and salts of alumina in food should be prohibited. It is well understood that the constant use of alum compounds exerts both a deleterious effect upon the digestive organs and an irritation of the intestinal organs after absorption."

EDWARD S. WOOD, M.D., Professor of Chemistry, Harvard Medical School, Boston.

It must be remembered that when alum baking powders are used in making bread, biscuit or cake, a portion of the alum is carried unchanged into the stomach.

Ten-cent, twenty-five-cent, cent-an-ounce baking powders contain alum.

OFFICIALS ARRANGING WINTER TRAIN SERVICE

Officials of the Denver & Rio Grande, Colorado & Southern and Santa Fe railways are holding numerous conferences in endeavoring to decide upon the winter train service between Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo. It is said the Santa Fe wants the service reduced. The C. & S. uses the Santa Fe tracks between Colorado Springs and Denver, and the companies are finding difficulty in reaching an agreement. Hourly trains are being run by the competing lines, and probably will be until a satisfactory agreement is reached in regard to reducing the service.

WEDDING OF FRANK DE VOTIE AND MISS ANNA STENSBY OCCURS IN IOWA ON NOVEMBER 8.

To claim as a bride the playmate of his childhood, Frank D. De Votie is in Colorado Springs, on his way from Guanajuato, Mexico, to Hartley, Ia., his old home.

Speeding across the northwest on the same happy mission as Miss Anna Stensby, who left San Francisco yesterday and who will be married to Mr. De Votie at Hartley, November 8.

Both Mr. Votie and Miss Stensby are well known in Colorado Springs. Mr. Votie served with distinction throughout the Philippine campaign, going to the Archipelago as a second lieutenant of the gallant First Colorado. He was afterward a assistant manager of the El Paso club in this city.

While here he renewed his acquaintance with Miss Stensby, whom he had known when they were children at their old Iowa home and who was engaged in the millinery business here at that time.

Later Mr. De Votie went to Guanajuato as chief accountant for the Guanajuato Power & Electric company, which has headquarters in Colorado Springs. He spent last night visiting friends here.

Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. De Votie will go to New York to sail for Vera Cruz and will enjoy their honeymoon on the romantic waters made famous by the "pirates of the Spanish main."

PLANS FOR HOME SENT EAST TWO WEEKS AGO

Preliminary plans, drawn by Douglas & Hetherington, for the proposed Railway Trainmen's home, were sent to the committee at Cleveland, O., two weeks ago. The order for the plans was given immediately after the committee viewing the various sites had visited the Union Printers' home. They are to be used in illustrating the style of the building should it be decided to erect one similar to the Printers' home. No decisive action has been taken.

OFFICIALS ADOPT NEW TIME CARD

AND TAKE NEW ARRANGEMENTS FOR HANDLING TRAFFIC IN CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

The evening "purveyor of misinformation" announced last night that "the meeting of the passenger men that was scheduled to be held this morning did not take place, as most of the officials interested were out of town today."

But the meeting was held at the offices of the Short Line, in the Mining Exchange building, yesterday morning. In attendance were C. H. Speers, general passenger agent; W. A. Matlock, traffic manager, W. W. Hatton, chief clerk of the passenger department, and others.

Final arrangements were made for putting the new time card into effect on October 26, according to the schedule announced exclusively in The Gazette. In order to save delay in transportation it has been decided to send all the baggage billed for Cripple Creek in the express car attached to the Short Line freight, which leaves Colorado Springs at midnight. This will enable passengers who come into Colorado Springs on the evening C. & S. trains to go to Cripple Creek on the Midland train in the evening, and their baggage will be in the district at 6 o'clock next morning.

When the new arrangement goes into effect round trip tickets to Cripple Creek will be honored only on the line for which they are sold; but, returning, the purchaser may travel over either line. The same system applies to tickets purchased in Cripple Creek.

CONCERT. At the regular meeting of the Woman's club, to be held in Perkins hall tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, Professor Blackett of the University of Colorado, will give a stereopticon lecture on the fresco of the Sistine chapel.

After there was no hope from doctors she began using Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, and now, thank God, she is completely cured, and her face is as clear as ever."

In order to have before it an exhaustive report on the materials available for the paving of Colorado Springs streets in the business district with estimates of what such work would cost, the Colorado Springs Real Estate exchange has appointed a committee to gather information on this important subject. Those comprising the committee are R. W. Chisholm, chairman, A. D. Williams, E. L. Spackman, E. C. Perkins and A. J. Lawton. They will have a report ready by the time the committee on sidewalks is ready to report a perfected compulsory sidewalk ordinance.

WILL ANSWER TO PERJURY CHARGE

BOTH CAPTAIN AND MRS. TIERNEY ARRESTED IN DENVER FOR MAKING ALLEGED FALSE AFFIDAVIT.

Mrs. L. Tierney, a captain of police, will be arraigned in the court of Justice Roby today to answer to the charge of perjury. He was arrested in Denver yesterday by Detective McNeil, and Sheriff O. P. Grimes went to Denver after the prisoner last evening. The complaint in the case is sworn to by F. J. Webber, who charges that Tierney made a false affidavit before John S. Gibbon, a notary public, charging Webber with destroying a certain deed to real property in this city, made by F. J. Webber and wife and delivered to Joseph W. Kidder. The false affidavit, it is alleged, was used as a basis for a direct information that was filed in the district court, and upon which a capias was issued and Webber arrested. When the case was called up for trial it was thrown out of the court and Webber acquitted.

JO DANDY IS RICH

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Oct. 19.—It is believed by J. W. Wright, owner of the Jo Dandy, that he will be able to ship a carload of ore that will approach if not exceed in quality the richest ever before mined in the Cripple Creek district. It will be recalled that the richest ever had consignment was made by the Isabella company two years ago, and that it was settled for at the Taylor and Brunton sampler for $215,000.

There are many streaks of superior quality in the Jo Dandy mine. They are situated in several parts of the property, but for their protection Mr. Wright has never made known their exact location. Ore from these sections will be broken simultaneously. Under this plan, for a short time, will be occupied in assembling the necessary tonnage.

Down on the 280-foot level a bunch of ore has been exposed that Mr. Wright believes will net $100,000. Such sum, it is understood, was the purchase price of the mine, but one payment needs to be made before Mr. Wright's title is indisputable. This payment will be made about the end of the year.

When Wright bought the Jo Dandy a year ago there was about as much ore in sight net as was asked for the property. He saw possibilities beyond the price, however, and concluded to take a chance. He subjected the property to systematic prospecting, and within a year has added several ore shoots and increased the amount of ore in sight many fold.

In commenting on Wright's achievement, a mining man recently remarked that the Jo Dandy well illustrated the possibilities of Cripple Creek ground, and what could be done with it by capable operators employing scientific methods.

STRIKE IN TEUTONIC

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Oct. 19.—It is reported a strike has been made in the Teutonic mine on Ironclad hill, but the report lacks confirmation. Several parties interested in the Teutonic have stock interests which may explain their enthusiasm to the recent developments.

At the main shaft, thirty and twenty-one feet from the 500-foot station, and a few days ago expected to break into a vein with any round of shots.

Lessees on the other shaft are sinking. A few days ago they were not far from a locality where they expect to pierce a vein encountered in drifting on the first level. Some ore in the drift was of marketable quality. Development of any bodies opened before and after their entrance on the Red Bird claim of the National company is proceeding under the direction of Supt. Tabor, of the Consolidated company, lessee. This work is being done on several levels, mainly on the first and second. On the first level there is a shoot from 8 to 18 inches in width, having a gold content in excess of 1 ounce to the ton. It is being followed by drift and has been opened horizontally for 20 feet. Attractive conditions have been developed in other veins. Ore is being saved and commercially marketed.

RUNS UP AGAINST INSURANCE LAWS

W. J. WALCH BROUGHT HERE FROM ORDWAY UNDER ARREST BY THE SHERIFF'S OFFICE.

For the first time in the history of the local courts a case of alleged violation of the insurance laws of the state will be commenced when W. J. Walch is arraigned before Justice W. N. Ruby today. The defendant is charged with writing insurance business for a company not licensed by the state department.

The complaint in the case was sworn to by W. S. Reynolds, a deputy in the office of the state insurance commissioner, and charges that on September 28, W. J. Walch did unlawfully procure, receive and forward an application for accident insurance and death benefit in the World Accident association of Omaha, Neb., a company not authorized to transact business in the state of Colorado, and did unlawfully deliver to Frank Y. Dibble, a Midland engineer, an insurance policy in the said company according to the application which he illegally solicited.

Walch is said to have done considerable business in this vicinity, having written policies in Colorado City, Roswell, Manitou and Colorado Springs. From this section he went to Pueblo and from there was bound east. The warrant in the case, which was issued Tuesday, was given to Sheriff Grimes for service. The sheriff ascertained that Walch had been in Pueblo but had left for Kansas on a Missouri Pacific train. A telegram to the city marshal of Ordway resulted in that officer being at the depot when the train arrived and Mr. Walch was taken in charge and placed in the city jail pending the arrival of an officer from this city. Under Sheriff George F. Dayton brought the prisoner to Colorado Springs last evening and he will be arraigned before Justice Ruby today.

WOMEN ARE INVITED TO MEET WHITE RIBBONERS

The noted leaders of the Woman's Christian temperance union will be the honored guests of the members of the local organization today and a large number of the white ribboners will delight in showing them the wonderful sights of the Pike's Peak region.

An informal reception will be held this evening at the Alta Vista beginning at 8 o'clock. Talks on behalf will play while the guests greet callers. Later, brief addresses will be made by the national president, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, vice president-at-large, Miss Anna A. Gordon, and other prominent leaders. Vocal solos will be rendered by Mrs. Graham, a sister of Miss Gordon, who is a fine singer.

Besides Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon, in the party will be Mrs. Susanna M. D. Fry, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Clara C. Hoffman, recording secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Preston Anderson, assistant recording secretary, and Mrs. Harriet Wright Brand, treasurer.

A cordial invitation is extended to all white ribboners and club women to attend the reception. At a meeting of Centennial chapter No. 58, Order of the Eastern Star, held, Tuesday evening, Past Right Worthy Grand Patron John McCoach, of Colorado City, was presented with a handsome medal in recognition of his service to the order. The presentation speech was made by E. P. Hufford, associate grand patron. Many members of the order from Colorado Springs and Colorado City attended the meeting, which had several enjoyable features.

The Best Doctor.

Rev. B. C. Horton, Sulphur Springs, Texas, writes, July 19, 1902: "I have used in my family Ballard's Snow Liniment and Horehound Syrup, and they have proved certainly satisfactory. The liniment is the best we have ever used for headache and pains. The cough syrup has been our doctor for the last eight years." Sold by Hefley-Arcularius Drug Co.

Of the eight civilized tribes in the Philippines, the largest is that of the Visayans, who occupy most of the islands lying between Luzon and Mindanao, and form nearly one-half of the entire civilized population. Tagalogs occupy the province in the vicinity of Manila. They rank second, with a little more than one-fifth of the civilized peoples, and the Ilocanos rank third, with approximately one-eighth. Among the wild tribes, the Moros are the most numerous, comprising about two-fifths of the non-Christian population.

Take Courage!

If you are naturally not as strong as your more fortunate sisters, and for this reason experience dread rather than joy at the prospect of becoming a mother, take courage and assurance from this fact: Mother's Friend is meant for you, and by its use you may pass through that glorious martyrdom which is yours by divine right with no more discomfort than that experienced by those who by nature are possibly more adapted for the role of motherhood.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

is a liniment of proven merit, and its great worth can be no better attested to than by the countless strong and healthy children who through its kindly offices have entered this world unhandicapped by any deformity or weakness. It is a liniment which by external application acts upon the abdominal muscles and permits of a painless parturition.

MRS. SCHMIDLAP IS KNOWN HERE

FIRST MET HER MURDERED HUSBAND IN COLORADO CITY—SCHMIDLAP A DRUG CLERK.

William Schmidlap, for whose murder Helen Schmidlap is now on trial in the West Side criminal court of Denver, was for some time a drug clerk at Robinson's drug store in this city.

The present Mrs. Schmidlap was then Mrs. Albert Ezekiel and she resided in Colorado City where she and Schmidlap first became acquainted.

Schmidlap's first wife was a sister of D. E. Monroe, druggist, Tejon and Bijou. They resided together at their residence on Nevada, south of the fire station. Later Mrs. Schmidlap sold the property and secured a divorce from Schmidlap who married the woman who murdered him.

She was the daughter of Briggs Goodrich of Tucson, Ariz., who spent some time in a Texas asylum for the insane. In her trial she has admitted that she traveled from Los Angeles to Denver to kill her husband because he refused to support herself or her children and because he suggested in a letter that she lead a life of shame. She testified that she first decided to asphyxiate herself and children, but thought better of this step and resolved first to kill her husband. She shot him with the same revolver with which he had threatened to kill her, their children and himself.

It has been five years since Schmidlap worked in this city. Charles L. Zobrist was at that time manager of the Robinson Drug company.

AMUSEMENTS

BUSTER BROWN.

Reserved seats are now on sale for the engagement of "Buster Brown" at the Opera house on next Monday and Tuesday evenings and Tuesday matinee. The stage has of late years given successful realizations of many characters first made famous in the funny pages of our great dailies, but of all these none have come forward with so strong a hold on universal favor as "Buster Brown," direct from a highly successful sensational season of 100 nights at the Majestic theater in New York and 200 nights in Chicago.

There are many reasons why Buster should be taken to the general heart, but two are most potent; these are his absolute and convincing reality and his youth. The child appeals to all; children sympathize with him and their elders love him. That clever and enterprising manager, Melville B. Raymond, was quick to see Buster's dramatic possibilities and secured from his creator the sole rights of representation. Then he built a story on Buster's pranks and put this in a handsome setting, illustrated with a chorus of exquisitely beautiful girls, gowned in the latest and most sumptuous styles. Musical features were supplied and large sums of cold cash were invested, in what has since been acknowledged to be the world's greatest cartoon comedy. Only second in importance to Buster in the thought of those who have come to know him so well is Tige, his dog. Popular prices are charged, 50 and 75 cents and $1.

WILTON LACKAYE IN "THE PIT."

Wilton Lackaye comes to the Opera house next Thursday evening in William A. Brady's great production of "The Pit," the dramatized version of Frank Norris' famous novel.

It is a story of Chicago, a strong and virile tale treating of speculation, the American fever for money gain, its evil social effects, but over and above all presenting the picture of the great market of America, the wheat pit. It is a fine, complete real story of one of the centres of life in America that mean most and count most, and of the motive force in the heart of this centre of life. The character of Jadwin is an intimate study of the business man, who has learned the game in its finest points and sacrificed nearly all other human interests to play it successfully, with millions as the stake of the transformation from normal nature and instinct into the automaton of the board of trade. The woman, Laura, his wife, left to her loneliness and longing for affection and companionship in the midst of her splendid life of luxury and leisure, serves as a suggestion of scene of the social problems from which Chicago, city of divorces, has become notorious, and the story on a story is so filled with human interest and right feeling that it carries deep the message it has, which in an abstruse paper of commercial and sociological learning would not have been read. This is not to accuse "The Pit" of being propaganda or purposeful beyond fiction limits. There is life in every scene, dramatic action and actual people.

MADRIGAL LADIES QUARTET.

From the numerous press notices the following are selected:

The Madrigal Ladies Quartet sang to a crowded house Friday night. This entertainment was by far the best number of the course so far given, and to say that the large audience was well pleased is putting it mildly. Every number received thunderous applause, which was responded to with a willingness which was very pleasing. Everyone spoke of the concert in the highest terms. The ladies did themselves proud.—News, Geddes, S. D.

The Madrigal Ladies Quartet appeared in Woodgate's hall last Saturday evening, and to say that they were good is not giving them were their due meed of praise. They are equal, if not superior to any similar organization which has visited our town. It was the first entertainment where a mixed audience appeared to enjoy music of a classic nature, but almost every number received an encore.—Herald, Slayton, Minn.

Going to Bed Hungry

It Is All Wrong and Man Is the Only Creature That Does It.

The complete emptiness of the stomach during sleep adds greatly to the amount of exertion, sleeplessness and general weakness so often met with. There is a periodical change of tissues in the body, sleeping or waking, and the supply of nourishment ought to be [illegible] taken just before retiring, adds more tissue than is destroyed and performs repair and vigor is the result. Dr. W. S. Mitchell says: "All animals except man eat before sleeping and there is no reason in Nature why man should form the exception to the rule."

To those who are thus nervous and sleepless would take a light lunch of bread and milk or oatmeal and cream and at the same time take a safe, harmless stomach remedy like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in order to aid the stomach in digesting it, the result will be a surprising increase in weight, strength and general vigor. The daily drawback has been that thin, nervous dyspeptic people ought to eat and assimilate wholesome food at night as now either there. For such it is absolutely necessary to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they will digest the food, no matter how weak the stomach may be, nourishing the body and resting the stomach at the same time.

Dr. Stevenson says: "I depend almost entirely upon Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in treating indigestion, because it is not a quack nostrum, and I know just what they contain, a combination of vegetable essences, pure pepsin. They cure Dyspepsia and stomach troubles because they can't help but cure." Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. They are in lozenge form, pleasant to take, and contain nothing but pure pepsin, vegetable essences and bisnuth, scientifically compounded. Your druggist will tell you they give universal satisfaction.

CRIMINAL AND CIVIL CHARGES ARE MADE

H. C. Hall, an engineer at the Monumental Valley sand mines, has been called upon to face both criminal and civil proceedings in the court of Justice Ruby as the outcome of an alleged assault upon Stanley Jones, an employe at the mines. The complaint in the criminal action charges Hall with assault and battery upon the person of Stanley Jones during a dispute on Wednesday. Hearing that a warrant was out for his arrest, Mr. Hall came to the court house and surrendered himself to the constable. He was arrested for trial on Oct. 21, and the defendant was released upon bond in the sum of $300. Jones has also brought suit in the same justice court to recover personal damages in the sum of $300 for the injuries he claims to have received at the hands of Hall.
